Product Description

Lifting Threads PDO PCL PLLA 4D 6D 8D 18g 19g 21g 100mm L W Blunt Type for face lifting

What are PDO Threads? PDO, which stands for polydioxanone, is an absorbable polymer that is flexible and durable.. The threads can be thought of as sutures, and there are three different types: Mono threads, smooth, and cog. Mono threads are smooth and singular sutures that provide a small lift. Cog threads have more of a barbed texture, provide a bit more of a lift. Screw threads have multiple threads intertwined and provide more volume to the treated area. The best part about these threads – they will stimulate natural collagen production. Here at Regenesi, we offer Mint PDO threads, as well as Nova Threads.

how long do the pdo thread last?

The optimal candidate is a person in the 30 to 60 year old age group who wants to tighten or lift certain areas of skin but who isn't ready for a facelift surgery. Most people like to target the nasolabial folds that go on either side of the nose to the sides of the mouth, and the marionette lines that go from the corners of the mouth down to the side of the chin. But many other areas can be targeted including the cheeks, brow, jowls, neck and underneath the chin. People older than 60 can be treated but typically don't see results as good as those younger. Frequently, more senior adults and those seeking more dramatic results would benefit more from a surgical facelift
