PRODUCT DETAILSWhat Is Radiesse?

As we age, our body produces less collagen. In fact, after age 20, our body produces 1% less collagen every year. At the same time, we lose the ability to retain moisture and elastin production decreases.

As a result, fine lines and wrinkles begin to form. Skin also begins to sag as it loses water and elasticity.

Radiesse is a minimally invasive cosmetic skin procedure. It involves injecting filler into specific areas of the face.

Typically used in the lower and mid-section of the face, Radiesse gives your skin volume again – and it does so without looking like you’ve had a procedure done.

Radiesse is particularly useful in the mid & lower face areas. It can also be used on hands that have visible signs of aging.

Who Is A Candidate For Radiesse?

The safe and easy treatment can help with creases in the corner of the mouth, the volume of your cheeks, and sagging jaw lines. It can reduce the appearance of jowls, strengthen weak chins, and fix nasolabial folds.

Radiesse is also a treatment option for people with aged skin on the back of their hands.

What Is A Radiesse Procedure Like?

The first step in a Radiesse procedure is your consultation. There, our medical provider will inform you of where the injections will go and what the dosage will be. They’ll inform you of any risks and prepare you for the treatment.

As with any procedure involving a needle, you may feel some discomfort or slight pain. But this 30-minute treatment is so quick and simple that you can head back work, home, or school after your appointment.
