Product Description

Liporase is a type of enzyme that hydrolyzes hyaluronic acid and is used to dissolve hyaluronic acid dermal fillers that have been placed incorrectly.

Liporase injection is a spreading substance. It is used with other medicines given under the skin to improve their uptake by the body. This method of drug delivery is only used when the drug cannot be given by injection into a vein. Liporase injection is also used to increase absorption of fluids or medicines that are injected into your skin. It also used to help improve absorption of radioactive substances during a procedure called subcutaneous urography.
