Non cross link ha

To stabilize hyaluronic acid, the small natural molecules must be bound, or "cross-linked," to each other with repeating chemical bridges to form a much larger molecule.Abstract. Hyaluronic acid fillers are used for facial rejuvenation and are classified as non-cross-linked or cross-linked (monophasic mono- or polydensified).

Lasting time

Non cross-linked fillers last only 3-4 months and are hardly used anymore. One last variable in HA fillers is their ability to attract water, their hydrophylic properties. The more they attract water, the longer the HA filler gives a correctionResults vary depending on your body type and the condition being treated. On average, patients notice visible improvement in two to three sessions. For certain conditions, patients see results after the first session.

Intended

Innovative products with highly purified biotechnological-origin hyaluronic acid to achieve excellent results including: deep hydration of the skin, stimulation of collagen and elastin production, as well as lessening of pigmentation and improvement to skin texture and tone.

knee injection

Knee osteoarthritis is a common but often difficult problem to manage in primary care. Traditional nonsurgical management, consisting of lifestyle modification, physical therapy and pharmacologic therapy (e.g., analgesics, anti-inflammatory medications), is often ineffective or leaves residual symptoms. Viscosupplementation is a newly available option for patients with symptomatic knee osteoarthritis that involves a series of intra-articular injections of hyaluronic acid
